

6th Annual MATTHEW'S MILES Walk For A Brain Tumor Cure

On January 11, 2001 our lives were forever changed when our then seven year-old son, Matthew, was diagnosed with a highly aggressive, inoperable brainstem tumor. The prognosis was grim. We were told Matthew had only six to nine months left, and that he would most likely not live long enough to celebrate his eighth birthday.

Despite Matthew's doctor telling us we had no hope, we sought other opinions. We could not give up on our son. We were led to Johns Hopkins Hospital where the doctors recommended a biopsy and partial resection. On February 5, 2001 Matthew underwent a seven-hour surgery during which the neurosurgeon managed to safely remove over half of Matthew's tumor. A few days later the doctor gave us the results of the final pathology report: instead of the highly aggressive tumor first diagnosed, Matthew had the lowest grade tumor possible. With tears in his eyes, the doctor told us Matthew could plan on celebrating many birthdays to come.

This year, Matthew's Miles will be participating in a WORLD wide effort to raise brain tumor awareness! All miles walked by participants in Matthew's Miles will be logged and sent to the International Brain Tumor Alliance—in support of their Brain Tumor Awareness Week project - the Walk Around the World for Brain Tumors. Organizations and individuals who are doing sponsored (or unsponsored) walks will "donate" their mileage so it can be uploaded to a professionally designed Awareness Week website. The idea is to reach a target of 25,000 miles which is the circumference around the World at the Equator. To read more about the International Brain Tumor Alliance, you can visit www.theibta.org

Please help us reach that goal!
